INTENSE BLIZZARD RAGED IN EASTERN STATES YESTERDAY

New York, Philadelphia, Altoona and Other Points Report Trolley and Wire Tie-ups.

FIVE-INCH BLANKET

New York, March 7.—A blizzard of intensity that rattled the storm of 1888 swept New York and adjacent states yesterday. Snowfall early today totaled five inches or more and was so dense as to obscure visibility for more than a few feet. Street cars were so jammed as to practically tie up street car traffic. Vehicle traffic throughout the city streets was difficult.

One boy is dead and many persons suffered severe injury as a result of the icy streets which are covered with a heavy covering of sleet and snow badly drifted.

Altoona Crippled.
Altoona, Pa., March 7.—Steam and electric traffic is badly crippled because of the worst snow storm of the winter. About eight inches of white has fallen in the past twenty-four hours.

Quebec City Blanketed.
Quebec, Canada, March 7.—A five-inch blanket of snow and ice covers the city today. Trolley and street car traffic is practically tied up. Snow is blowing in gusts and then back to snow has fallen almost continuously for twenty-four hours.

On the Maine New.
Washington, Mar. 7.—The blizzard which has hit the middle and north Atlantic coast with a heavy fall of snow will begin to wane early tomorrow. The Weather Bureau forecasts today.

Cold northwest winds, reaching gale force in some localities and resulting in big snow drifts, will diminish tonight. More snow, however, is predicted for many states during the day, particularly in northern New England. Even sunny Florida felt the effect of the blizzard and a light frost is predicted for northern parts of that state tonight.

BRITISH CABINET SHOT TO PIECES BY BYE ELECTION

London, Mar. 7.—A full meeting of the cabinet was summoned today to consider the serious situation created by three successive defeats of members of the Bonar Law government at bye elections. The set-back was discussed and it was announced the vacancy created by Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen's enforced resignation following his defeat at the polls probably will be filled by tonight.

Irish Chamberlain, brother of Austen Chamberlain, minister in Lord George's cabinet, probably will be appointed to the vacant post, that of Minister of Health.

ELECTRIFICATION OF ALL RAILROADS AND INDUSTRIES IS PINCHOT'S AIM IN ARRANGING GIANT POWER SYSTEM

Harrisburg, Pa., Mar. 7.—A preliminary plan for development of a giant power system involving a power transmission network covering the whole northwestern section of the United States and the virtual electrification of all railroads and industries in that area, was arranged today under the direction of Governor Pinchot.

Young Woman Taken From Train Thought To Be A Drug Victim

Harrisburg, Pa., Mar. 7.—A brother and sister today identified the young woman taken unconscious from the eastern express of the Pennsylvania railroad yesterday as Mary Estelle Robinson, daughter of a wealthy Philadelphia family.

Mrs. Robinson had apparently been drugged or poisoned, physicians stated. Her age was given as 29 and her address as 125 South Twenty-second street, Philadelphia.

CLARION RESIDENT IS FATAALLY INJURED IN CANAL ZONE

Harrisburg, Pa., Mar. 7.—Albert C. Hindman, district attorney of the Canal Zone, who was a native of Clarion, Pa., died here late yesterday as a result of injuries received when the car in which he was riding collided with a milk can and the shaft of the cart pierced his lung.

He was appointed to the Canal Zone in May, 1922 while he was assistant attorney general of Idaho. He was a resident of Boise.

PRISONER DIES FROM WOUNDS

Harrisburg, Pa., Mar. 7.—Eddie Mozart, light-weight boxer, died here today as a result of injuries received when he was hit by Frank Dorry of Meadown, Michigan in the fourth round of a fight before the American Legion Club. Death resulted from concussion of the brain.

NEWSPAPERMAN PUT FEAR INTO HEARTS OF DIVEKEEPERS

Col. Charles A. Rook of Pittsburgh Making Police Step Lively Since Taking Over Big Job.

PLENTY SHAKE-UPS

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 7. (United Press)—The man of the hour in Pittsburgh today is Colonel Charles A. Rook, former newspaper publisher and now director of the department of public safety.

When Rook gave up what appeared to be a flourishing publishing business to enter public service work at the request of his old friend Mayor William A. Magee, few thought he would make good. Most people believed Rook took the job of safety head at $5,000 per year as an experiment and something with which to pass the time hanging heavy on his hands.

But Rook got right down to business and surprised everybody a few hours after he took office. The first thing he did was to transfer several hundred policemen and their immediate supervisors—he made a wholesale shift for the good of the service, he said.

Then he issued strict orders to police commissioners regarding vice conditions and violations of the traffic regulations in their respective districts. He prepared general orders with instructions that they be read at least twice every week by every member of the police force.

Letters began to pour into Rook's office congratulating him on his vigorous fight for a clean city and many volunteered aid in calling his attention to such conditions as exist in their immediate localities. Rook accepted this offer and issued a public statement calling upon the citizens of Pittsburgh to help his campaign against vice and graft in the police department.

With hundreds of citizens on the job, Rook keeps an eye peeled for police officers trying to play two sides of the game. Invariably when a complaint reaches him, out goes

Irish Insurgents Kill Four Officials By Use Of Mines Under Doors

Dublin, March 7.—Detective Kelly was blown to pieces and the custom's office in Beresford place here was wrecked by the terrific explosion of a land mine today.

The infernal machine had been placed beneath the door of the office. Kelly answered a knock at the door and as he did so the mine let go, shattering everything around and damaging adjoining buildings.

Three Free State officials and a number of soldiers were killed in an explosion of a slow mine at Kona-agle in County Kerry.

LITTLE CHILD DIES

John Arnold, 8 month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Litten, formerly of Clearfield but now living at Blue Ball died at the home of Mrs. Litten's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Myers, 312 North Second street, Philadelphia Saturday evening, March 3d, 1923, at 7:30. The babe had been all with pneumonia from which complications developed. Parents and grandparents were greatly attached to the little one who was a bright and loving child. He is survived by his parents, one brother and one sister, Charles and Frances.

Funeral services in charge of Rev. Charles F. Kulp, of the Baptist church will be held at the Myers home at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and burial at Blue Ball.

COOK AT JAIL IS BOOTLEGGER SAYS SHERIFF LOWELL

Alleged He Has Found a Way to Get Into Impounded Liquor and Supplied Prisoners.

REGULAR 'POOBAH'

Ever since we first heard Gilbert & Sullivan's tuneful comic opera "The Mikado" and listened to old "Poo Bah" demanding a "punishment to fit the crime," we have been at a loss to decide just what he meant. But we know now all right and we got our information not from but through Charley Gross, who was engaged at the county jail, at the other end of it.

All moonshine and other hard liquors taken from bootleggers or moonshiners haled into the Clearfield county jail, is impounded in an old vault in the basement of the county jail. Workmen engaged in revamping the jail some time ago got to sampling the "evidence" and Sheriff Lowell demanded a burglar proof door on the vault. An iron door was placed upon the vault, but in order to save iron it was made of strips with three or four inch apertures between the bars which, like the stripes on old D.ddy Grimes' famous vest, ran up and down. Accordingly it is now possible for one to stand in the cellar and gaze through the slats in the door at a motley collection of vessels on the inside of the vault containing hard—some of it terrible—liquor.

Charley Gross, who was engaged several months ago by the County Commissioners as a cook at the jail, happened into the cellar one day gazed through the door and—was lost. He straightaway began to connive and then to scheme on a way to get some of that liquor out of its seclusion. Necessity acting as the accustomed spur to invention came to Gross' aid and securing the hook used by the boiler fireman he slipped the same between the bars and inserting the hook and into the "eye" or handle of a 5-gallon jug soon "hooked" it over right up against the door. Procuring a line of empty fruit jars from the kitchen the cook placed them in front of the door and it was then no trick at all to reach thru and grasping the jug, tilt it up until its contents splashed right into the jars. When he had abstracted sufficient for his needs at the time the jug was shoved back away from the door, "the hook" replaced and the salvaged liquor hid away for use.

Feeling that it would pay to advertise, the cook, when he had sufficient supply on hand, manufactured a dozen or so mince pies on his own hook as a surprise to his bootlegging clientele in the jail. Each pie was charged with a specially generous portion of the stuff which first made mince pies famous in New England, and you don't need to ask "did it work?" It almost caused a riot in the jail, and a every bootlegger in captivity had a little comfort for just such emergencies, the thrifty cook was soon doing a land office business on the side. He said, selling the bootleggers their own liquor. Just think of it, men, bootlegging in the jail and getting paid for it.

Unfortunately all good things come to an end, and when Abe McKee, a trusty, ran foul of one of the cook's quart jars where he had hid it for emergencies, and straightaway contracted a real he-man's jag, the fat was in the fire, while the cook was

Second Civil Service Examination Will Not Be Held In Accordance With Wishes of Congressman Jones

HIS APPOINTMENT WILL SOON FOLLOW

C. E. Roseberry, of South Fourth street, will be the next postmaster of Clearfield. Congressman William I. Swoope, who was sworn in as such on Monday morning last promptly recommended Mr. Roseberry to the Postmaster General for Acting Postmaster at Clearfield, and he will take over the duties just as soon as his appointment can be made by the Department and his bond perfected.

Following the resignation of Postmaster Tobias last summer, a Civil Service examination for postmaster at Clearfield was held. But four men took that examination and of these four Mr. Roseberry was the only one to qualify for the job by reaching the "passing mark" set by the Commission.

The result of this examination was made known to Congressman Evan I. Jones, then representing the 2d district, but a couple of weeks before his term ended, with the passing of the 67th Congress. Congressman Jones, for reasons of his own, refused to recommend Mr. Roseberry for the place he had won, and notified local people he had, asked the Civil Service Commission to call for another examination for Postmaster at Clearfield.

When Mr. Swoope qualified for the position he took up the matter of the

OFFICERS' BODIES, SLAIN BY SHINERS, FOUND IN CREEK

Franklin, La., Mar. 7.—The bodies of Deputy Sheriffs Wesley Crain and Wiley Pierce were found by searchers today buried in the mud of a creek here. Both officers had been shot to death.

The bodies were found near a still, which they had planned to raid the night they were murdered, according to Deputy Bateman of Washington police.

John Murphy and Gideon Rester, farmers, have confessed to killing the two deputies. Bateman declared the officers' bodies were found.

ditto. After getting at the bottom of things and learning just why his pened up bootleggers could be happy eighteen hours per day even though in disgrace, Sheriff Lowell got in touch with District Attorney Arnold and a warrant was promptly issued for the alleged cook-bootlegger and he is now languishing on the inside, equally as dry as they are, with not a drop but water in sight.

When charged with the crime Gross finally fessed up after a grilling but denies selling any. He is in jail in default of $1,000 bail and some interesting developments are looked for when his case comes to trial.

CONSTABLE MANION TOO SOCIABLE WITH THE STATE POLICE

Oscar Mannion, the Bigler township constable, who was caught by State Policemen near Altoona while transporting a keg of Atlantic's finest moonshine, and who was indicted in the Blair county courts for violation of the liquor law, will be called for trial at Hollidaysburg on Monday next according to the schedule made up by District Attorney Peterson.

The grand jury at Hollidaysburg on Monday last returned true bills against Mannion, his brother Henry Mannion and C. M. Davis, all of Madera and they are all listed for trial on Monday on the same charge.

In order to demonstrate that the "pitcher may go once too often to the well," we give herewith the facts of the doughty Constable's capture. On the night Mannion was a taking his liquor to his Altoona customers, a State Trooper and Altoona officers were on duty along the highway looking for a car that was supposed to have left Bellwood with a cargo of hooch. The officers were stopping every car answering the description of the one they sought. When the Mannion party came along in their limber, not being the party sought, the cops paid no attention to them and allowed them to slide past.

In passing Constable Manion is said to have noticed the policemen at the roadside and stopping his car backed back to where they were standing and proceeded to engage them in conversation. During this conversation he displayed his big tin Bigler township badge of authority as an identification mark. As he talked on and on one of the officers pulled back a curtain on the car and spying the keg of "shine" said "While we were not looking for you, guess we'll take you fellows in," which they did.

Spring Dress Hints

EVERETT TRUE

By Condo

By HEDDA HOYT
Fashion Editor for the United Press
(Write for the United Press)
New York, March 7, (United Press)—Among the swaggy sport costumes worn at the southern beaches at present, the pleated gray silk crepe skirts with gray middie blouses monogrammed in bright colors come and their share of attention.

The fashionable women who attend the opera are again wearing long white gloves with the short sleeved evening gowns. For the past two seasons gloves have been conspicuously absent, but recently the sixteen inch length glove is noticed both on older matrons and the debutants. Irresistible volles which come in shades of red and blue, gold and tan, lavender and rose and numerous other two-toned effects will be used a great deal during the summer months. They resemble somewhat the changeable organdies having the same two-toned sheen.

Bandeau blouses which are straight lined affairs resembling the middie in line are worn with the white sport skirts at the resorts.

Paris is still favoring the small cloche shape hats in colors—tobacco brown, black and beige. So far the straw hat had not made a definite appearance in Paris, as women are clinging to the suedes and felts trimmed in side clusters and pom-poms or ribbon. Fruit and flowers are shown on many of the advance hats from Paris and it is said that the coming season will see much of them. The most rose is especially good. At present where flowers are used they are placed tightly against the crown, surrounded by moss or leaves and covered with tulle so that a heavy embroidered effect is obtained.

Coat dresses made of horizontally embroidered silk and cloth materials will be popular for the spring street costumes. They have lapel collars and cuffs of fur and use the side-hip fastening. Mink, kolinsky, summer ermine and squirrel are the favored furs used on these coat frocks.

The fringed bang is worn by many women who have decided to give up bobbed tresses. The hair is parted in the middle or at one side with a fringe of bangs coming over the forehead. The bob is then curled downward and concealed beneath a long wig of false hair, which is wrapped about the head in Grecian fashion. This makes an admirable head-dress or evening wear, where the undignified bob is decidedly out of its element.

A gown which, owing to its present popularity, will be repeated during the summer months, is the long-dicked organdy frock with the full skirt trimmed in bands of wide velvet ribbon of a shade darker than the organdy. Ribbon forms the tiny leaves and outlines the rounded neck in grayish blue this gown would be most attractive for summer afternoon affairs.

Pleated skirts will rule over the plain skirts for a sport wear and when worn with short jackets, they often have their waist-lines gathered in elastic bands with front and back bib-vests joined together by shoulder straps thus doing away with the necessity of the blouse.

Matelasse material can be made into the most charming jackets for the semi-sport costume. It comes in white, rose, yellow, taupe, tan and lavender and with a pleated skirt of crepe de chene of the same shade it makes an exquisite costume.

A Statesman Set Right.

Even those who pride themselves upon correct speech frequently use phrases that are either "impossible" or ungrammatical. A statesman said recently that "he did not belong to a certain club." What They Say.
It was the first day of her first term of school, and the new teacher called up the class and asked a large girl to tell of Columbus' voyage. "Well," said the girl, "Columbus started out and sailed around a dot." "What?" said the astonished teacher. "He sailed around a dot," repeated the girl. Pressed for her authority, she pointed triumphantly to the page in the book and the teacher read: "About this period Columbus sailed."

Clearfield borough was one of the first boroughs in Pennsylvania to take advantage of the Shade Tree Commission law. Our Shade Tree Commission has been working for ten or twelve years and has already accomplished a whole lot in the proper location and care of the shade trees which have made Clearfield not only pretty and attractive but famous the state over.

We baldheads must hang together and we therefore make haste to set our friend Cal Hoover of DuBois right before the readers of this valuable paper. Having once heard that even the hairs on a man's head were numbered and one glance at Cal's sparsely veined poll causing us to think here was a fine place to find it out for ourselves, we decided to take Cal's "number" while he was testifying in that DuBois case. It didn't take us long and the count showed just thirty-seven when fact we stated as the result of our personal census of Cal's head in that story. He now claims otherwise, hence, in the interest of fairness, the alacrity to set him right. Here is Cal's "alibi":—

DuBois, Pa., March 3, 1928.

Dear Jim:—
The "curbstone" lawyer, Mr. Boyer, just called my attention to your article in the "Progress" regarding the alleged Carson-Jeffries escapade. For your information would advise you to have your eyes treated. In fact I am having 40 hairs I have 42, a net gain of two.

Yours,

C. C. HOOVER.

The Pennsylvania State Game Commission spent a total of $639,176.78 during 1927 in looking after the business of propagating game and enforcing the laws against illegal taking of same, together with other incidental necessary expenses. Believing it will be of interest to hunters, now that a proposition to make a fifty per cent increase in the license fee is pending, to show where and how this money was spent, we present herewith the detailed statement just issued by the State Game Commission:

Mysterious Confectionery.
The Chinese are very skilful in making confectionery, and possess the reputation of having the "secrets" the knowledge of which our own confectioners would find very desirable. They are able to make an orange of its pulp entirely, then fill it up with fruit jelly without one being able to find the smallest bit in the rind or even a tiny hole. Indeed, they even empty an egg in the same manner and fill it with a sort of almond nougat, without one being able to find the slightest break or incision in the shell.

Danger in "Stuffy Rooms."
The most important aspect of "bad air" are due to its high temperature, and the ill effects of even a slightly elevated room temperature, such as 75, are regarded sufficiently clear to warrant warnings against overheating.

Intelligence, Character, Courage Are Alone the Property of Individuals

by HERBERT HOOVER, in "American Individualism."

The social force in which I am interested  springs from the one source of human progress—that each individual shall be given the chance and stimulation for the best with which he has been endowed.

Intelligence, character, courage and the divine spark of the human soul are alone the property of individuals. Those do not lie in agreements, in organizations, in institutions, in masses or in groups. Production both of mind and hand rests upon impulses in each individual.

No civilization could be built or can endure solely upon the ground of unrestrained and intelligent self-interest.

The law has not arrived when any economic or social system will stand and last if founded upon altruism alone.

The will-o-the-wisp of autocracy in any form is that it supposes that a good lord endows a special few with all the divine attributes.

We in America have had too much experience of life to fool ourselves into pretending that all men are equal in ability, in character, in intelligence, in ambition.

Of the twelve men comprising the President, vice president, and cabinet, none have earned their way in life without economic inheritance and eight of them started with manual labor.

Progress is almost solely dependent upon the creative minds of those individuals with imaginative and administrative intelligence.  No one possesses more than a small percentage of those minds in a single generation.  They can rise solely through the selection that comes from the re-running mills of competition.  They must be given the attraction of premiums to effort.  It is the individual alone who functions in the world of intellect and in the field of leadership.

Leadership cannot, no matter how brilliant, carry progress far ahead of the average of the mass of individual units. Ideas that lead to progress are born out of the womb of the individual mind.  The crowd only feels; it has no mind of its own with which it can plan.

While we build our society upon the attainment of the individual, we shall safeguard to every individual equality of opportunity to take his position in the community to which his intelligence, character, and abilities entitle him; that we keep the social solution free from the domination of a few; that we shall stimulate the effort of each individual achievement; that through an enlarging sense of responsibility and understanding we shall assist him in this attainment; while he in turn stands up to the emery wheel of competition.

"She's an American. I Wonder What She's Doing So Far Away From Shore"

By REPRESENTATIVE T. H. MACLAFFERTY, of California.

I went to the Orient in 1916, and after leaving the port of Honolulu in four months' time I saw the American flag afloat only four.

The fourth time I saw it was on my way home, and I want you to picture this. We were crossing back to America in a British ship carrying 52 passengers, 50 of whom were American citizens and 2 of whom were Britons. About 10 days out, one day, having seen nothing, we saw a little smudge of smoke in the distance. Naturally, everyone alive is a moment, and we watched that little smudge as it grew through the glasses. The captain of our ship was a typical Britisher, a broad, noisy, good-hearted British seaman, and finally that little tub, which she proved to be, a little American steam schooner coming from the Sound over to Japan, bobbing up and down on the face of the ocean. A cork broke out the American flag, and what did the British captain

I shall never forget it as long as I live, and it is one reason that I am in favor of this bill. He said, "Oh, by Jove, she's an American! I wonder what she's doing so far away from shore." There you have it!

Eleanor Boardman

The development of Eleanor Boardman as a "movie" star has attracted much attention. From about 2,000 girls she was chosen a very short time ago by a leading producer who was seeking material for film work. Doing her first small part to the satisfaction of the producer she was rapidly given more important parts until she now has reached stardom.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; signifying your lucky day and lucky hour.

EFFIE

FROM the quaint old-fashioned Euphemia, so rarely heard to these days, comes the phony name of Effie. It is not a diminutive, as is generally supposed but a full-fledged name with an interesting history. Originally Euphemia meant both fair speech and justice from the Greek, so that from an ironical standpoint it signified silence, and was applied to the stillness that prevailed during religious rites.

The first Euphemia who gave scope to the name was a daughter of the Greek, Queen Margaret, who, in the twelfth century, made her name famous by her beauty and her piety. She was called her "Euphemia" because she was so fair and so just. In the thirteenth century, the name was used by the Scottish king, Robert Bruce, and it was then that the name was changed to Effie. Phemie was also Scottish but did not attain the popularity of the former.

However, neither Effie nor Phemie, which I have been gravitating since those early times, can ever be forgotten because of the finest works of Sir Walter Scott. Heracles of fiction, written by the masters of literature, and their names are immortalized as heroes of history and Effie is no exception to this general rule.

It was once thought that the Scottish name Euphemia was one of the Greek names brought from Hungary by Queen Margaret. Others believed that it came from the Celtic, Aelfe, which has fostered so many of our present day feminine names. Indeed, those so inclined may take their choice of possible sources, though general credence is more often given to the first derivation, since it concerns a religious and in older days, it would seem that being martyred was all that was needed to perpetuate one's name through the centuries.

In the Scottish Highlands, Effie is called Oighigh, a name which seems to have no derivation whatever. The Church of Santa Eufemia at Rome gives title to a cardinal and through it the name has spread in popularity in Italy and France.

Effie's story is the topic, which has the power of the sun to put to flight all evil and dark forebodings, but it must be set in gold to accomplish its purpose. It promises that no harm shall befall its wearer. Tuesday is her lucky day; 2 her lucky number, and the chrysanthemum her flower.

The Delights of Life.

"What seems to grow faster" to me as life goes by is the love and peace and tenderness of it; not its wit and cleverness and grandeur of knowledge, grand as knowledge is, but just the laughter of little children, and the friendship of friends, and the comfort by the fireside, and the sight of flowers, and the sound of music.—J. R. Green.

Didn't Want to Wish.

"Internal but dry, and makes me internally thirsty" growled the colonel, sinking into the club's biggest arm chair one afternoon. "Tell them to fetch you some water, colonel," suggested a cold-hearted scoundrel who knew the old gentleman's habits, but the ancient warrior was equal to the occasion. "Sir," he said, fixing the suggestor with a fiery glare, "I don't thirst—not dirty."

Mean Man.

"I hear that Laura's engagement to the young minister is off." "Why, yes, she told me. He was horribly jealous and so unfair." "In what way was he unfair?" "Every time she would make an engagement to go motoring with some other man he would pray for rain."

Surprising.

At the celebration of the Burns centenary in Boston in 1940 Emerson surprised his audience, according to Lowell, who was present, by reciting in his program: "The Memory of Burns—I am afraid heaven and earth have taken too good care of it to leave us anything to say."

Fan Is Run by Alcohol.

A fan has been perfected that runs with alcohol. A little lamp operates it by heating air in a cylinder. The expansion and contraction of the air is ingeniously utilized to provide the motive power for the fan. Remarkable results have been obtained according to the company manufacturing it.

More Than One Universe.

With the naked eye one may see 5,000 stars, with the telescope 50,000, 000. And beyond planet and star and Milky Way are the nebulae, of which Herschel counted more than 2,000—stellar disks, composed of billions of suns—unexplored universes far outside our own, not friendly, next-door neighbors to us, like the North star, whose light requires only 50 years to reach us, or like Sirius or Hercules.

His Definition.

"Why are they called pyramids, pa?" asked George, who was looking at a picture of those wonders of Egypt. "They are called pyramids, my son," replied the father, without hesitation, "because, you see, they appear amid the general desolation of the desert."

Foolish Rabbits.

A hare will dart in the path of a giant locomotive at night and run at the rate of sixty miles an hour in the full glare of the headlights and finally drop exhausted. It will never leap from between the rails to a place of safety. The hare pursues the same tactics on the highway when autos are speeding.

Buildings Burned in a Year Would Bridge Continent

AMERICA burned up nearly $500,000,000 in buildings and their contents in 1921, and probably exceeded that figure in 1922, according to statistics of our national fire loss.

Such a figure does not mean much to the human mind, but try to grasp it this way:

Imagine a line of buildings, such as those on any average city street. These are solid, substantial two-story structures, so close together that their eaves touch. But instead of extending the length of a city street, they stretch in an unbroken line all the way across the continent, from New York to Los Angeles.

Now imagine a fire starting in a building on the New York end of the street on January 1. It burns fiercely and is communicated to the next structure, and the next. So it burns its way without stopping night and day, until on December 31 it is burning the Los Angeles end of the street.

That line of burned buildings represents America's material loss by fire during the year.

More than that! In the blackened ruins of that street in every mile there is some person suffering from burn, and in every space of three miles and a half is a charred human corpse.

This huge loss does not take into account America's cost of fighting fire, which is also about $500,000,000. Nor does it take into account the loss of records, which are not insurable, and without which a business house or individual merchant is virtually powerless to show the amount of his loss for the collection of insurance.

It has been estimated that 80 per cent—four-fifths—of all this appalling loss is preventable.

Word From Headquarters.

"When, where and how will the war end?" "I don't know," replied the landlord of the Patunia tavern. "However, the young ladies and gents of the senior class of the village academy, several of whom are over sixteen years of age and have been outside of the county a time or two, are going to settle the entire question in a debate to-night. I understand, too, that while they are at it they will fix things so there will never be any more wars. So I shall be able to inform you in full tomorrow morning."

Wisdom in Liberty.

The United States is the only country where one can say offensive things about the executive and go unpunished, which may have much to do with the traditional sweetness of the American disposition, fermenting opinions of those in authority being promptly uncorked and as soon forgotten.

Independent Group Will Be Strong In New Congress

Preparations Being Made For Fight That May Dictate Issue In The Next Presidential Race

By LAWRENCE MARTIN

(United Press Staff Correspondent) Washington, March 7 (United Press).—With the 67th congress hardly out of town, preparations already are under way for the 68th which, under normal conditions, will not meet until the first Monday in next December.

These preparations will go forward all through the spring and summer, for they involve issues upon which the 1924 campaign may turn. And when the new congress meets, the 1924 campaign will be just around the corner.

The preparations were being made by three political groups who will figure in the 68th congress. They are the administration republicans, the independent or progressive republicans and the democrats.

The democrats, with greater strength in the new congress than in the late one, were concentrating their thought and effort on one thing—harmony. The vital necessity for getting all the democrats in congress working harmoniously together, if any real advantage is to be gained from the results of the 1922 congressional election became apparent to national leaders long ago.

In the senate particularly, the democrats hope for great things from the leadership of Senator Joe Robinson, Arkansas, who will replace Senator Underwood, Alabama, as majority leader. Underwood got the leadership after a fight of unprecedented bitterness and it was only then that Senator Underwood consented to give up his treasury portfolio and enter the senate that Underwood was assured of victory. His vote threw the scales. The statement of that fight was division and jealousy.

Underwood retired voluntarily at the end of the 67th congress and Robinson, early in the field won by superior generalship over Senator

Simmons, N. C., his only rival. Robinson stepped out and pledged practically all the new democrats to himself and insured his election, whereupon Simmons withdrew. That meant that when Robinson is formally elected, there will be no opposition in the caucus, and a better chance for subsequent harmony will exist.

Robinson admittedly has a heavy task ahead, for while the democrats are counting on the votes of some of the new progressive or independent republicans, to help them, no one knows how far such votes can be counted on, or when they can not be counted on. The new leader has promised to be aggressive without being rash, and constructive without being radical. His friends believe that if he can keep his temper, he will make a capable floor leader.

The Republicans, on their part, have a leadership problem growing out of the same situation which makes Robinson's task delicate. While the republicans retain a paper majority of eight in the senate, they cannot count on some of those listed as republicans to vote with the administration. In spite of Senator Lodge's denial that he was too enfeebled and weary to lead, some of his colleagues think he ought to be satisfied with the title of leader emeritus, or something derogative like that, and that the actual leading ought to be entrusted to some younger, more vigorous hands. Like Barkis, some of the younger senators are willing and they and their friends already are at work trying to line up votes to unseat Lodge. The unseating if it occurs will be gentle, and the Republicans will give him a soft cushion to sit on, and will tell the world that he is still leader, but that he won't work at it much. Lenroot, Wisconsin, has some support for the plan. Watson, Indiana, would like it. There is talk of others.

The Independents

The first group is that little handful of independents out of the west that blew in on the 1922 election cyclone. They include Frazier, N. D.; Shipstead, Minn.; Wheeler, Mont. Dill, Washington; Howell, Neb. They add their strength to that of Borah, Couzens, Brookhart, LaFollette, Norris and sometimes, Norbeck and Ladd. They will be the real rulers of the new senate. There is another group just like them in the house but there, because of the rigidity of rules, and the ease with which the unyielding body can be led by the nose, they may have more trouble making their power felt. If they do, however, it will not be for lack of trying, because the Wisconsin delegation is already primed with plans for organizing the next house according to the most modern LaFollettean ideas.

Members of Farm Bloc

The new independent group will be members of the farm bloc, but a definite movement to organize them into a third section, or wing of the senate, distinct from the republicans and democrats, is already under way. It may come to flower and fruition before next December. It is being carefully watched.

The leadership of this new group has already been pre-empted by Senator LaFollette. Whether he will be able to keep it probably will be decided by the turn of events. LaFollette is so superlatively different from the rest of the senate that even the gloomiest conservatives do not believe the newcomers will be radical enough to suit "Fighting Bob" and that he will disown them ere long.

"POTATOES" FOUND TO BE "POTEE"

Philadelphia, March 6.—Federal Prohibition Agents had under guard about five hundred thousand dollars worth of imported liquor, seized in the brewery of John Friedrich.

The seizures were made under the direction of F. A. Hazeltine, new Prohibition Chief for Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey. Agents swooped down on the Friedrich plant and found two railroad cars loaded with four thousand sacks labeled "potatoes." The sacks were ripped open and each contained twenty-four bottles of alleged Johnny Walker whiskey.

The agents, it was announced at Prohibition Headquarters found thousands of counterfeit script and a complete outfit for bottling whiskey.

BUSINESS MEN WANT FRENCH CAUTIONED IN INVASION OF RUHR

Washington, March 6.—American business men are exerting pressure on the United States government for action in the French occupation of the Ruhr district. Protests have been filed with the Commerce and State Departments against interference with transportation of German goods destined for the United States.

Shipments purchased by firms in the United States are reported to have been seized as they were being sent out of the Ruhr Valley. Protests in the form of letters, maintaining that commerce especially in the dye and drug trade is menaced by the action of the French. British drug and chemical firms have also been annoyed by the interference with commerce, according to word which has been received by official departments here. They have likewise filed complaints with their government.

That Corman Symptom of Disease Is That Fowls Get Very Thin, Waste
Away and Die.

Tuberculosis is one of the most common diseases found in the poultry flocks of the corn belt, says J. J. Warren of Iowa. The disease develops rather slowly. The infected birds do not usually show any symptoms until several weeks have passed, and in many instances several months after they have contracted it.

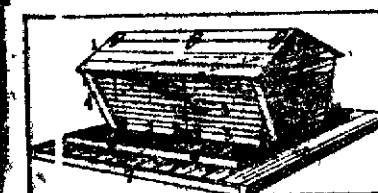

The most common symptom of tuberculosis is that the birds get very thin, "waste away" and finally die. Another is to find a bird going lame on one leg without showing any outward sign of injury, even while the bird is in good health. The bird may live several weeks after this lameness first shows up.

To make sure that the disease is tubercle, it pays to kill and examine the insides of a very sick bird. The liver, spleen and intestines are often enlarged, but contain light yellow spots which are hard, and contain lesions. Lungs are seldom found to contain lesions.

The cure for tuberculous is to keep it from spreading. Run the dead birds or bury them, kill the infected birds without spilling their blood, don't try to keep aged hens and keep the henhouse clean, especially from droppings. Use lime on the soil where the flocks feed, and change the ground. It helps some to separate the young chicks from the old ones and to be careful when buying new stock. Sanitation is the biggest help.

to Afford Best Means of Rationing Mens.

After using many types of dry mass feeders in the poultry house the model shown in the cut appears to afford the best results. The fowls cannot stand on the top of the feeder, or get into it.

It is an Art Anyone Can Acquire, and the Sooner Unhealthy Fowls
Go the Better.

With chickens is to the poultry keeper what milk testing is to the dairyman. Fortunately it is an art anyone can acquire. The sooner the stock is culled the sooner expenses are cut down. Then, too, the prices are higher earlier in the season. The man who is making the most of his poultry is systematically culling birds lacking in health, and general purpose breeds not laying and two years old or over, should go. The older the birds the less profitable she becomes.

Few Is Usually Best for Breeding
When From Three to Five Years of Age.

Toulouse geese ordinarily will not breed until about two years of age and they do not mature for another year. They are usually best for breeding when from three to five years old, although the females may be kept until they are from twelve to fourteen years of age, the ganders not generally being kept after they are eight or nine years old.

The busy hen is the laying hen.

There are poor laying hens in the

In poultry raising the breed is important, but the man or woman behind the breed is more so.

A sick hen may be faded but will not show the vigor that is shown in a good layer.

With colder weather more corn may be fed but it is easy to overfeed corn, even in winter.

Camden, N. J., March 6.—John Fister, aged thirty-two was virtually left waiting at the church while police searched for sixteen year old Freda Kibicki the bride to be.

A sister of the prospective bride appeared at the City Hall Saturday afternoon and secured a license and the ceremony was to have taken place at three o'clock this afternoon. Invitations were issued and plans for a big wedding had been made.

Freda left her home Sunday afternoon to visit some girl friends and did not return. Her father on his way to report her disappearance met the parents of Albert Franaszki, aged eighteen, who had called to report their son was missing. Police believe the missing couple eloped as Albert had drawn all his savings and the girl told friends she was going to Troy, Pa., to be married.

Women Bluebeards On Trial At Chicago

Chicago, March 6.—The death penalty was asked by prosecutors today at the afternoon trial of Mrs. Tillie Klimeck and Mrs. Nellie Kozlik, alleged female "Blue Beards."

The women are alleged to have planned and carried out a wholesale poisoning scheme which claimed at least six lives and caused scores of persons to be dangerously ill.

The women were indicted on six counts of murder. They will be tried first for the murder of Frank Kasper, third husband of Mrs. Klimeck.

In practically every instance rat poison was used.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR
Sage Tea and Sulphur Tonic
Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and easily. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

SHAWVILLE

Arthur Bushore of Sinnemahoning is visiting his sister, Mrs. Joseph Bushore.

Mrs. Merrill Kyler visited relatives and friends in Clearfield this week.

Ray V. Nelson visited relatives and friends in Clearfield this past week after being confined to his home the greater part of the winter with rheumatism.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Graham of Perry last week, a girl baby.

While the Rev. R. V. Wallace was doing his work at H. & W. mines Tuesday morning his horse suddenly became unmanageable, overturning the sleigh in which he was riding and dragging him a considerable distance through the snow and slush in a futile attempt to stop the frightened animal. Aside from a few minor injuries and a necessary change of clothing, Mr. Wallace was unhurt and was taken up on procuring his horse which had trapped itself in a fence nearby, to resume his journey.

Miss Lily Olson, the Egypt school teacher, visited her parents in Clearfield last week.

Farmers and others who make a practice of filling their ice houses for future consumption were somewhat disappointed this winter owing to the thin and inferior quality the streams produced despite severe periods of cold weather.

Tuesday evening as a New York Central empty coal train was pulling out of Clearfield a large rock rolled down a steep embankment and lodged in the tracks rigging under an empty car. The result was several hundred feet of track torn up and the car immobilized. Several hours intervened before the wreck was cleared up and traffic allowed to proceed.

KEATING
E. Evans, the popular P. R. R. agent, is visiting friends in Atlantic City.

Miss McKeena, P. R. R. signal maintenance man, is visiting his parents at Erie this week.

W. L. Linsinger, of Birch Island, transacted business in Clearfield last week.

J. L. Schomo transacted business in

Clearfield during the week.

On account of the high water at Lock Haven Sunday and Monday traffic on the Pennsylvania railroad was suspended owing to their tracks being covered with water to a depth of several feet in that vicinity. As the N. Y. C. trains use the Pennsy tracks between Keating and McElhattan, this inundation forced the N. Y. C. to divert their first-class and perishable freight to the Beech Creek district until the situation at Lock Haven again returns to normal.

COUDLEY-FRENCHVILLE

William Mulson, a N. Y. C. employee of Coudley, was recently appointed section foreman on section five, at Rolling Stone.

The big wildcat which has been roaming over the Deer Creek hills for a number of years, is still escaping captivity.

The old log house on the estate of the late Fred Pontenoy, in Covington township, which braved the weather for more than four score years, is now being razed. The building was erected by the late John Ridger, of Frenchville, and was one of the first of its kind to be erected by the early settlers in this part of Clearfield county. The old structure contained eight large rooms, a wide hallway, and a large porch at the south entrance, and once stood as a "mansion" to the eyes of the early settlers, but time has found its usefulness. However, many hundred feet of valuable timber are being salvaged from it.

Nico's Bronchell of Frenchville was visiting friends in Clearfield during the past week.

Owing to the hidering weather which we had last week, our mail had great difficulty in getting over their routes.

We are glad to report that the health of Mrs. Ada Jannot, of Frenchville, which has not been the very best for some time, has greatly improved.

March 6th, 1923, marks the third anniversary of the 26-foot ice jam in the Susquehanna river, at Dear, on which our valuable bridges were carried away.

George Green of Coudley left for Emporium last Friday, upon receiving CAL TWO RIPPLES—word that his brother Robert was seriously ill at that place.

Miss Emma Berger, of Coudley, was visiting relatives in Karthaus last Tuesday.

THE FAITH OF THE STATE CANNOT BE KEPT WITH PENN STATE COLLEGE WITH NINE CENTS PER CAPITA PROVISION

By DR. JOHN M. THOMAS, President of the Pennsylvania State College

NOTE:—This is the third of a series of articles by President Thomas dealing with the true relation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the Pennsylvania State College. In his previous articles, Dr. Thomas outlined the pledge made to Penn State by the Commonwealth in 1863 when it accepted the provisions of the Morrill Land Grant Act of Congress, and he brought out the way the Commonwealth had fulfilled its pledge.

III. Further Fulfillment of the Pledge

The covenant which the Commonwealth made with the United States involved a continuous and increasing responsibility. The pledge was to most education, which was doubtless expected to increase as time went on, and which as a matter of fact, in the marvellous industrial development of the past fifty years, has increased immeasurably. It was maintenance to Penn State is less than nine cents per capita. Sixteen States in 1922-1923 contributed over one dollar per capita for support of the liberal and practical education of their State institutions. It is clear the industrial masses and which should of necessity increase its facilities and advance according to the demands and requirements of our advancing civilization.

Assuredly Pennsylvania did not pledge her faith to an institution which made no progress, but rather sylvania young men and women have been refused admission each year because of lack of accommodations. An average of 600 have been refused entrance each year since 1915, while due to the wide publicity given to the inability of the college to grant admission many others were no doubt discouraged from applying. Who were they—these thousands who have been stopped at Penn State's door? They were Pennsylvania youth desiring to fit themselves for positions in Pennsylvania agriculture and industry. They were the potential instruments for the increase of food production and the stimulation of industry and business in the Commonwealth. Certainly fulfillment of the pledge to Penn State requires that this loss be stopped.

To fulfill the pledge of the Commonwealth to Penn State under present conditions two things are necessary:

1. To provide adequate funds for the maintenance of the College with the present student body and educational program.
2. To furnish additional funds to meet the demand for increased enrollment and for the normal development of its teaching, research and extension projects.

As a State institution, Penn State depends upon the State to meet these needs.

Truth in Short Sentence. "Ingratitude," said Uncle Eben, "is what a man complains of when he wants to draw big dividends on a small favor."

Grip Left You a Bad Back?

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

ARE you getting over a cold or grip only to find yourself a victim of backache? Are you suffering headaches, too, dizzy spells, a dull, tired, worn-out feeling and annoying kidney irregularities? Then don't delay! Physicians agree that a vast number of the worst cases of kidney trouble are the result of germ diseases. In every infectious disease the system is alive with poisonous germs and bacteria. The kidneys are overwhelmed with the rush of new work; they break down, become congested, inflamed and diseased. Too often the real trouble is lost sight of until some dangerous kidney ailment sets in. If your kidneys are falling behind, don't wait for serious trouble. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills to-day. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Read How These Clearfield Folks Found Relief:

MRS. ROY SHIREY, 128 Clearfield St., says: "I had an attack of kidney complaint that caused me to have a severe pain in the small of my back. When I got up mornings, the pain was severe and I had headaches. My hands were swollen, too. After taking about four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, the pains in my back were all gone and I haven't been troubled with my kidneys since. I think Doan's are wonderful for kidneys."

O. P. CONKLIN, 414 Nichols St., says: "I suffered with my kidneys. I was drowsy and became dizzy. I also had headaches and severe pain in the small of my back, which caused a lot of annoyance. It was difficult for me to stoop on account of the trouble with my back. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me wonderfully, removing the pain in my back, dizziness and drowsiness. The headaches also went away."

MRS. L. P. WAGNER, 244 River St., says: "I have been troubled at times with severe pains in the small of my back. When I would lie down I could hardly get an agonizing and I couldn't bend over. I had headaches, too. I found that Doan's Kidney Pills relieved this condition and freed me of the backache and headaches. Others in my family have used Doan's and they have always found the same good relief."

DISCOVERIES MADE TO ORDER AT THE MELLON INSTITUTE OF INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH AT PITTSBURGH EVERY DAY

There are a good many of us who never stop to think where all the myriads of inventions come from that minister to our comfort, desires and progress. We know in a general way that Edison invented electric light, the Wright Brothers the airplane, Henry Ford the motor, and Ingersoll the dollar watch that used to be.

But, since such modern miracles seem to keep right on happening, and most of us don't know where they come from, we are, as a rule, very apt to simply take them for granted, and not inquire very deeply into why, how and where.

They come, an institution whose business, in a manner of speaking, it is to make inventions to order. We are all more than willing to admit that the discovering of new inventions and the perfecting of old ones is a mighty important, not to say serious, business, and certainly it is something of a relief to those of us who are not of an inventive turn of mind to learn that there is a place where this vital matter is reduced to a science.

In an article entitled "Discoveries Made to Order," a recent issue of Success Magazine tells about the work of Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, of Pittsburgh, Pa. This Institute, it appears, was built by Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury of the U. S. A., and his brother, Richard B., as a memorial to their father. It is a memorial built of stone and marble, as most memorials are, but there, it seems, its resemblance to the usual memorial ceases.

For of all the "five," active places on ever saw, one gathers that Mellon Institute is entitled, if not to the palm, at least to its modern substitute.

Harold Cary, the writer of the article in question, tells of his surprise at the variety and scope of the research work done. A liquid for stopping dental decay, research into the keeping of bread, gas masks, T. N. T., dental porcelain, magnesium, metal, metal, glass, enamel, fruit, enamel, etc.

There appears to be no end to the methods and processes investigated, nor any end to the inventions, both major and minor, that are turned out as part of the day's work, not to mention the improvements of all sorts and degrees.

green on existing discoveries. Mr. Cary appeared to be particularly overwhelmed, and no doubt our readers will be also, by the fact that he was conducted through the Institute by Miss Alice Wakefield, who is "Junior Fellow" of a laboratory maintained for several years past by the Laundryowners National Association.

Who would think that the prosaic business of washing clothes would have to be "researched," along with metal metal and magnesium? To most of us it would appear that washing, though a sloppy and laborious process, consists principally of soap and water and a tub and washboard or washing machine.

Such, however, appears to be several lengthy slants away from the truth of the matter.

It seems that, to get by in the modern laundry, soap must be the pure stuff, unadorned by any substances that will "eat" the fabrics while they are "eating" the dirt in them; that water must be of "zero hardness," which means softer than rainwater; that shades of our grandmothers' lots of home washing is unsanitary because goods are not properly sterilized!

Therefore the modern laundry owner, along with his associates, is spending many thousands of dollars each year to maintain at Mellon Institute a staff of four people, who devote their whole time to the study of textiles and how to launder them for sweet and sanitary cleanliness, with long life to the linens and to the ladies who formerly rubbed away years of their lives over the washbasin.

This last item is by no means least among the attempts and accomplishments of the Mellon Institute, say we.

Mysterious Confectionery.
The Chinese are very skillful in making confectionery, and possess the reputation of having some secrets the knowledge of which our own confectioners would find very desirable. They are able to empty an orange of its pulp entirely, then fill it up with fruit jelly without one being able to find the smallest cut in the rind or even a tiny hole. Indeed, they even empty an egg in this manner and fill it with a sort of almond nougat, without one being able to find the slightest break or inclusion in the shell.

Not Exactly.
"Now that fads have practically ceased in this region," said the specter tourist, "I presume you have, figuratively speaking, beaten your pistol into pruning hooks?" "Nope," replied Mr. Gap Johnson. "Rumpus Ridge Ark. 'In the first place, we don't raise prunes yur, and in the second place you never know who a dead fend will be liable to set up and take notice.'"—Kansas City Star.

Furnace Rules.
Never poke a fire from the top. Insert the poker at the bottom and raise gently. This causes a draft, and makes the fire burn brightly. But it is well in these days to make it a rule to poke the fire as seldom as you can, for the more you poke it the more will the coal burn away.

Gender of Ships.
It is a well-known fact that ships are almost invariably referred to as being of the feminine gender. Now and then a ship is called "it," but with rare exceptions the reference is "she" or "her." Just why this is so it would be difficult to tell—the custom is so ancient.

Fiber sponge.
The Loofah sponge, now in general use, is made from the network of fiber from the inside of the gourd, probably one of the oldest vessels known to man. Japan furnishes the best sponges of this kind. The fiber used in the Loofah sponge is dried thoroughly, after which it becomes wholesome and crisp.

Carana-Fed Hogs Best.
It has been found that the warm-out banana lands of Central and South America make ideal pasture for hogs. Animals fattened on the grass found in these lands, and on the small unmarketable bunches of bananas which grow there, produce a superior, almost odorless lard and finely flavored meat.

Painting Windows.
An effective and cheap method of darkening windows is to stipple them by means of a brush with white lead and turpentine, applied lightly or thickly as desired. Red lead could be used where a tint is preferred or other colors could be obtained by mixing the pigment of the desired shade with the white lead. This preparation can easily be removed.

These fashions have been selected especially with those in mind who are interested in the latest in fashion. The influence will be shown chiefly in the colors and designs of the popular printed fabrics, printed silks, slits, all crepe, cottons, wools, even wool jerseys. And the after the design, the more popular the fabric.

THE LEEDS BANK ROBBERY

BY E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Copyright, 1922, by E. Phillips Oppenheim
Agent, NPA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SIR NORMAN GREY, formerly of Scotland Yard, is devoted to his work, to tracking down the bad men of the world.

MICHAEL SAYERS, arch criminal, is known to Grey under the alias of Stanfield. Michael is in a small car to Brown's bank in the suburb of Leeds and rob it of over 1000 pounds, Stanfield, from the bank into a touring car in which JANEY SOLAR, his confederate, is waiting for him. Sayers, who is a man of the small car, is arrested but freed for lack of evidence.

Sir Norman tracks Michael to Scotland Yard, where he finds him living under the alias of Stanfield. He dines with Mr. and Mrs. Greer, and then goes to a game of golf by the river.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

Sir Norman Continues

"With pleasure," I assented. "At ten o'clock."

"I will be in the clubhouse," I promised him.

We go to bed, up here," he remarked, "practically with the sun."

I was in my room. I took my leave, and as I walked down the drive, with the low moon shining through the bare trees, I felt the ghosts of tragedy gathering.

At five minutes to ten on the following morning I watched Mr. James Stanfield push open his private gate leading onto the links, and stroll across toward the clubhouse. I was in my hand and stepped back into the locker room. Three or four men in tweeds and golfing outfit were waiting there. In five minutes my prospective opponent entered. In five seconds the hands were upon his wrists, and one of the three apparent golfers had the matter in hand.

"You are charged," he said, "with feloniously changing, William Hammett, manager, and John Stokes, clerk, of Brown's Bank in the Men Wood Road, Leeds, and with stealing from the premises the sum of seven thousand pounds. I should recommend you to come with us quietly and to reserve, for the present, anything you may have to say."

Looking at him as he stood leaning a title against his own locker, I could have sworn that there was no means of change in the face or expression of my enemy. He ignored the officers and looked across at me.

"This is your doing?" he asked.

"An error," I admitted.

"You know it is not," he said.

"It was you who reminded me that I need not take it," I replied.

He nodded.

"The trick is to you," he continued. "I am ready, gentlemen."

He walked quietly out to a waiting motor, with a burly policeman on either side of him, and a very important man from Scotland Yard in the party. Rimington and I were left behind, and presently we essayed a round of golf. All the time my eyes kept straying toward the Lodge. No sign, however, came from there.

"I'll go," Rimington remarked as we waited for a few minutes on the tee. "Don't quite understand how you tumbled to this, but so quickly."

"It was quite easy when you consider the possibility of the fact that the bank was robbed," I replied.

Robertson was in it, it was Stanfield who had taken the bank. The Detective was ready to take, containing the field and Robertson was in the Homberg hat and a white shirt. The chauffeur brought a small order book and a small order book and a small order book. The chauffeur was taking the order of the day to fill up with a small order book. The moment Stanfield descended and played again. There came no sign from the Lodge. Somehow or other, the silence seemed to me only noise. Toward evening I began to get uneasy. Just as we were sitting down to dinner, I was fetched to the telephone.

HER EYES WERE FILLED WITH A MINGLED LIGHT, A LIGHT OF ALLEGEMENT AND CHERITY. I MOVED TOWARD HER.

"Inspector McCall speaking," the voice I heard declared. "Are you Sir Norman Grey?"

"Yes," I answered.

"Have you heard the news?"

"I have heard no particular news since early this morning," I replied.

Stanfield escaped eleven miles from here," the Inspector declared gloomily.

"Escaped? Ridiculous!" I exclaimed.

He did it anyhow. He shot both his hands with an automatic pistol and in the hole of one shoe and worked with the toe of the other. Mr. Greer, from Scotland Yard, is seriously wounded, and one of the others is shot in the leg. Stanfield has been arrested, the driver until he has been taken from the handcuffs and taken to a thin mile of a railway station. There he tied the man to a tree and he had no news.

"I make no intelligible remark," I muttered something to the effect that Rimington and I had been outside a little giddy. The chauffeur was looking at me with a stare, looking toward the Lodge until at last I yielded to an irresistible impulse. I hastened across the few yards of beaten ground, common, crossed the road, made my way up the straggling avenue and rang the great front-door bell. Presently the huge door swung slightly open. Janet stood there, looking out at me.

I freely admit that I lost my nerve. I lost my poise, and with it all the gifts which enable a man to face an exceptional situation. For this woman showed no signs of any mental disturbance. I had never seen her look more beautiful. She moved away from the door.

"Come in," she invited. "I have been expecting you."

Our footsteps awakened strange echoes in the hall. She led the way into the sitting-room which opened onto the terrace, and sank back on the divan, where apparently she had been resting.

"Judith," she murmured.

"You know, then?" I demanded harshly.

"Everything—even the last little episode. What fools you policemen are!"

"He isn't safe yet," I muttered. She laughed mockingly.

"I worry no more about him," she declared. "It is not an equal struggle. I worry only about myself, alone here."

"Alone—here?" I echoed.

She nodded.

"Harding, our butler-chauffeur and confederate, has taken the car—where you can guess. Our little broke his leg this morning and has gone to hospital. I am not afraid of burglars, but I am terrified of mice, and the place is overrun with them. Also I simply loathe the idea of having to get up and make my own coffee in the morning."

I rose to my feet.

"There are empty rooms at the Dormy House," I told her, "where you could obtain service and be made quite comfortable. I am going back now. Shall I bespeak one for you?"

"You would really have me there," she asked curiously, "under the same roof as your august and respectable self?"

"Why not?"

"The wife of a famous criminal," she reminded me. "The wife of the man whom you have betrayed! You and I share a secret too, don't we? Would you vouch for my respectability?"

I MOVED a step toward her. Her eyes were filled with a mingled light, a light of allegement and cruelty. Her lips were moist and quivering—was it with anger? A long bare arm was withdrawn from behind her head. Then a voice fell upon the throbbing silence like a douche of cold water.

"Hands up—like lightning!"

I obeyed. I recognized the voice of the man in Harding's livery. It was Stanfield, who had crept in upon us unheard.

"A mixture of Lathrop and Inspector Bucket!" he mocked. "Any prayers to say?"

"If you are going to shoot, let's have it over quickly," I answered.

The woman stepped between us. "Don't be absurd," she said to the newcomer. "We couldn't afford to part with Sir Norman. Life would be too dull without him. Put him on parole. He is perfectly trustworthy."

"You are right," Stanfield admitted. "Take your choice, Greyes—twelve hours' silence, or eternity. I will be silent for twelve hours."

He pointed to the door.

"I cannot have the last few hours I may ever spend with my wife disturbed," he said. "Kindly leave us."

I went. There was a mist before my eyes, a cloud befitting my brain. Rimington was sitting on the porch, smoking, when I got back. He moved his head toward the Lodge. It was obvious from his expression that he too had heard from McCall.

"What do you think about taking a look round there?" he suggested.

"Quite useless," I replied tersely. "Let's have a game of billiards and try and forget the whole damned business."

"The Honor of M. Lathrop," fourth story of this remarkable series, will begin in our next issue.

(National Crop Improvement Service) This grain grower knows what dockage is—a penalty for the weed seeds, dirt and other trash found in his wheat—not even he, and certainly not the average man, realizes the staggering cost and losses now caused by the common plan of leaving all this foreign material in the grain when it is shipped to market, and then mailing it necessary for the elevator or ultimate users to clean it out.

"Large savings in transportation costs to terminal markets would be made by the farmers, if they and the country elevators would ship only clean wheat," is the opinion of Robert H. Black, in charge of grain cleaning investigations of the United States Department of Agriculture at Minneapolis.

Mr. Black further states that the average carload of spring wheat received at Minneapolis during October had over one and one-half tons of screenings. They have no market value, and the freight was a total loss to the shipper, and a waste of car space. Elevator, and three hundred and thirty-two cars of spring wheat averaged 4 1/2 per cent dockage in October. This means the farmers or country shippers paid for transporting 450 cars of valueless waste. During the 1920-1921 crop year, it is estimated that more than fourteen thousand additional freight cars were required to haul the wheat than would have been necessary to haul the wheat if it had been cleaned first.

Many a farmer would have had profit instead of loss if he could have had one of these wasted cars when he wanted to ship his grain, to say nothing of the wasted freight charges.

Many Kinds of Marble Used. There are said to be more than 400 different kinds of marble used in New York city, and in color they range from bright reds and greens to the most delicate shades of pink, turquoise and yellow. Some are known as dead stones because of their flat, somber hues, while others are alive with dashes of vermillion, scarlet, emerald green and lavender.

Few Reach Standard of Beauty. The standard of beauty, by general consent of the artist and poets of all ages and all climes is to be found in the faces and forms of the Greek statues. How many women and men of today fulfill the canons of beauty? "One or two in a million," says Professor Fotheringham.

Where is it? "Isn't it strange how quickly these war maps get out of date?" "Really, Mr. Brunk, I had not thought about it. Do they?" "Yes, indeed. I bought a new one only last week, and today I looked for an hour for Arrangeddon, but I couldn't find it anywhere."—Christian Herald

New York, Philadelphia, Altoona and Other Points Report Trolley and Wire Tie-ups.

FIVE-INCH BLANKET

New York, March 7.—A blizzard of intensity that rattled the storm of 1888 swept New York and adjacent states yesterday. Snowfall early today totaled five inches or more and was so dense as to obscure visibility for more than a few feet. Street cars were so jammed as to practically tie up street car traffic. Vehicle traffic throughout the city streets was difficult.

One boy is dead and many persons suffered severe injury as a result of the icy streets which are covered with a heavy covering of sleet and snow badly drifted.

Altoona Crippled.
Altoona, Pa., March 7.—Steam and electric traffic is badly crippled because of the worst snow storm of the winter. About eight inches of white has fallen in the past twenty-four hours.

Quebec City Blanketed.
Quebec, Canada, March 7.—A five-inch blanket of snow and ice covers the city today. Trolley and street car traffic is practically tied up. Snow was falling steadily and then back to snow has fallen almost continuously for twenty-four hours.

On the Maine News.
Washington, Mar. 7.—The blizzard which has hit the middle and north Atlantic coast with a heavy fall of snow will begin to wane early tomorrow. The Weather Bureau forecasts today.

Cold northwest winds, reaching gale force in some localities and resulting in big snow drifts, will diminish tonight. More snow, however, is predicted for many states during the day, particularly in northern New England. Even sunny Florida felt the effect of the blizzard and a light frost is predicted for northern parts of that state tonight.

BRITISH CABINET SHOT TO PIECES BY BYE ELECTION

London, Mar. 7.—A full meeting of the cabinet was summoned today to consider the serious situation created by three successive defeats of members of the Bonar Law government at bye elections. The set-back was discussed and it was announced the vacancy created by Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen's enforced resignation following his defeat at the polls probably will be filled by tonight.

Irish Chamberlain, brother of Austen Chamberlain, minister in Lord George's cabinet, probably will be appointed to the vacant post, that of Minister of Health.

PLENTY SHAKE-UPS

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 7. (United Press)—The man of the hour in Pittsburgh today is Colonel Charles A. Rook, former newspaper publisher and now director of the department of public safety.

When Rook gave up what appeared to be a flourishing publishing business to enter public service work at the request of his old friend Mayor William A. Magee, few thought he would make good. Most people believed Rook took the job of safety head at $5,000 per year as an experiment and something with which to pass the time hanging heavy on his hands.

Rook got right down to business and surprised everybody a few hours after he took office. The first thing he did was to transfer several hundred policemen and their immediate supervisors—he made a wholesale shift for the good of the service, he said.

Then he issued strict orders to police commissioners regarding vice conditions and violations of the traffic regulations in their respective districts. He prepared general orders with instructions that they be read at least twice every week by every member of the police force.

Letters began to pour into Rook's office congratulating him on his vigorous fight for a clean city and many volunteered aid in calling his attention to such conditions as exist in their immediate localities. Rook accepted this offer and issued a public statement calling upon the citizens of Pittsburgh to help his campaign against vice and graft in the police department.

Irish Insurgents Kill Four Officials By Use Of Mines Under Doors

Dublin, March 7.—Detective Kelly was blown to pieces and the custom's office in Beresford place here was wrecked by the terrific explosion of a land mine today.

The infernal machine had been placed beneath the door of the office. Kelly answered a knock at the door and as he did so the mine let go, shattering everything around and damaging adjoining buildings.

Three Free State officials and a number of soldiers were killed in an explosion of a slow mine at Kona-agle in County Kerry.

COOK AT JAIL IS BOOTLEGGERS SAYS SHERIFF LOWELL

Alleged He Has Found a Way to Get Into Impounded Liquor and Supplied Prisoners.

REGULAR 'POOBAH'

Ever since we first heard Gilbert & Sullivan's tuneful comic opera "The Mikado" and listened to old "Poo Bah" demanding a "punishment to fit the crime," we have been at a loss to decide just what he meant. But we know now all right and we got our information not from but through Charley Gross, who was engaged at the county jail, at the other end of it.

All moonshine and other hard liquors taken from bootleggers or moonshiners haled into the Clearfield county jail, is impounded in an old vault in the basement of the county jail. Workmen engaged in revamping the jail some time ago got to sampling the "evidence" and Sheriff Lowell demanded a burglar proof door on the vault. An iron door was placed upon the vault, but in order to save iron it was made of strips with three or four inch apertures between the bars which, like the stripes on old D.ddy Grimes' famous vest, ran up and down. Accordingly it is now possible for one to stand in the cellar and gaze through the slats in the door at a motley collection of vessels on the inside of the vault containing hard—some of it terrible—liquor.

Charley Gross, who was engaged several months ago by the County Commissioners as cook at the jail, happened into the cellar one day gazed through the door and—was lost. He straightaway began to connive and then to scheme on a way to get some of that liquor out of its seclusion. Necessity acting as the accustomed spur to invention came to Gross' aid and securing the hook used by the boiler fireman he slipped the same between the bars and inserting the hook and into the "eye" or handle of a 5-gallon jug soon "hooked" it over right up against the door. Procuring a line of empty fruit jars from the kitchen the cook placed them in front of the door and it was then no trick at all to reach thru and grasping the jug, tilt it up until its contents splashed right into the jars. When he had abstracted sufficient for his needs at the time the jug was shoved back away from the door, "the hook" replaced and the salvaged liquor hid away for use.

Feeling that it would pay to advertise, the cook, when he had sufficient supply on hand, manufactured a dozen or so minute pies on his own hook as a surprise to his bootlegging clientele in the jail. Each pie was charged with a specially generous portion of the stuff which first made moonshine famous in New England, and you don't need to ask "did it work?" It almost caused a riot in the jail, and a every bootlegger in captivity had a little comfort left for just such emergencies, the thrifty cook was soon doing a land office business on the side. He said, selling the bootleggers their own liquor. Just think of it, men, bootlegging in the jail and getting paid for it.

Unfortunately all good things come to an end, and when Abe McKee, a trusty, ran foul of one of the cook's quart jars where he had hid it for emergencies, and straightaway contracted a real he-man's jag, the fat was in the fire, while the cook was

HIS APPOINTMENT WILL SOON FOLLOW

C. E. Roseberry, of South Fourth street, will be the next postmaster of Clearfield. Congressman William I. Swoope, who was sworn in as such on Monday morning last promptly recommended Mr. Roseberry to the Postmaster General for Acting Postmaster at Clearfield, and he will take over the duties just as soon as his appointment can be made by the Department and his bond perfected.

Following the resignation of Postmaster Tobias last summer, a Civil Service examination for postmaster at Clearfield was held. But four men took that examination and of these four Mr. Roseberry was the only one to qualify for the job by reaching the "passing mark" set by the Commission.

The result of this examination was made known to Congressman Evan I. Jones, then representing the 2d district, but a couple of weeks before his term ended, with the passing of the 67th Congress. Congressman Jones, for reasons of his own, refused to recommend Mr. Roseberry for the place he had won, and notified local people he had, asked the Civil Service Commission to call for another examination for Postmaster at Clearfield.

When Mr. Swoope qualified for the position he took up the matter of the

OFFICERS' BODIES, SLAIN BY SHINERS, FOUND IN CREEK

Franklin, La., Mar. 7.—The bodies of Deputy Sheriffs Wesley Crain and Wiley Pierce were found by searchers today buried in the mud of a creek here. Both officers had been shot to death.

The bodies were found near a still, which they had planned to raid the night they were murdered, according to Deputy Bateman of Washington police.

John Murphy and Gideon Rester, farmers, have confessed to killing the two deputies. Bateman declared the officers' bodies were found.

ditto. After getting at the bottom of things and learning just why his pened up bootleggers could be happy eighteen hours per day even though in disgrace, Sheriff Lowell got in touch with District Attorney Arnold and a warrant was promptly issued for the alleged cook-bootlegger and he is now languishing on the inside, equally as dry as they are, with not a drop but water in sight.

When charged with the crime Gross finally fessed up after a grilling but denies selling any. He is in jail in default of $1,000 bail and some interesting developments are looked for when his case comes to trial.

Thus it will be seen that while the Gross income at the jail is now less than nothing, the gross total of inmates therein is increased by one. Sad, isn't it?

CONSTABLE MANION TOO SOCIABLE WITH THE STATE POLICE

Oscar Mannion, the Bigler township constable, who was caught by State Policemen near Altoona while transporting a keg of Atlantic's finest moonshine, and who was indicted in the Blair county courts for violation of the liquor law, will be called for trial at Hollidaysburg on Monday next according to the schedule made up by District Attorney Peterson.

The grand jury at Hollidaysburg on Monday last returned true bills against Mannion, his brother Henry Mannion and C. M. Davis, all of Madera and they are all listed for trial on Monday on the same charge.

In order to demonstrate that the "pitcher may go once too often to the well," we give herewith the facts of the doughty Constable's capture. On the night Mannion was a taking his liquor to his Altoona customers, a State Trooper and Altoona officers were on duty along the highway looking for a car that was supposed to have left Bellwood with a cargo of hooch. The officers were stopping every car answering the description of the one they sought. When the Mannion party came along in their limber, not being the party sought, the cops paid no attention to them and allowed them to slide past.

In passing Constable Manion is said to have noticed the policemen at the roadside and stopping his car backed back to where they were standing and proceeded to engage them in conversation. During this conversation he displayed his big tin Bigler township badge of authority as an identification mark. As he talked on and on one of the officers pulled back a curtain on the car and spying the keg of "shine" said "While we were not looking for you, guess we'll take you fellows in," which they did.

Spring Dress Hints

EVERETT TRUE

By Condo

By HEDDA HOYT
Fashion Editor for the United Press
(Write for the United Press)
New York, March 7, (United Press)—Among the swaggy sport costumes worn at the southern beaches at present, the pleated gray silk crepe skirts with gray middie blouses monogrammed in bright colors come and their share of attention.

The fashionable women who attend the opera are again wearing long white gloves with the short sleeved evening gowns. For the past two seasons gloves have been conspicuously absent, but recently the sixteen inch length glove is noticed both on older matrons and the debutants. Irresistible volles which come in shades of red and blue, gold and tan, lavender and rose and numerous other two-toned effects will be used a great deal during the summer months. They resemble somewhat the changeable organdies having the same two-toned shen.

Bande blouses which are straight lined affairs resembling the middie in line are worn with the white sport skirts at the resorts.

Paris is still favoring the small cloche shape hats in colors—tobacco brown, black and beige. So far the straw hat had not made a definite appearance in Paris, as women are clinging to the suedes and felts trimmed in side clusters and pom-poms or ribbon. Fruit and flowers are shown on many of the advance hats from Paris and it is said that the coming season will see much of them. The most rose is especially good. At present where flowers are used they are placed tightly against the crown, surrounded by moss or leaves and covered with tulle so that a heavy embroidered effect is obtained.

Coat dresses made of horizontally embroidered silk and cloth materials will be popular for the spring street costumes. They have lapel collars and cuffs of fur and use the side-hip fastening. Mink, kolinsky, summer ermine and squirrel are the favored furs used on these coat frocks.

The fringed bang is worn by many women who have decided to give up bobbed tresses. The hair is parted in the middle or at one side with a ring of bangs coming over the forehead. The bob is then curled downward and concealed beneath a long wig of false hair, which is wrapped about the head in Grecian fashion. This makes an admirable head-dress or evening wear, where the undignified bob is decidedly out of its element.

A gown which, owing to its present popularity, will be repeated during the summer months, is the long-dicked organdy frock with the full skirt trimmed in bands of wide velvet ribbon of a shade darker than the organdy. Ribbon forms the tiny leaves and outlines the rounded neck in grayish blue this gown would be most attractive for summer afternoon affairs.

Pleated skirts will rule over the plain skirts for a sport wear and when worn with short jackets, they often have their waist-lines gathered in elastic bands with front and back bib-vests joined together by shoulder straps thus doing away with the necessity of the blouse.

Matelasse material can be made into the most charming jackets for the semi-sport costume. It comes in white, rose, yellow, taupe, tan and lavender and with a pleated skirt of crepe de chene of the same shade it makes an exquisite costume.

Even those who pride themselves upon correct speech frequently use phrases that are either "impossible" or ungrammatical. A statesman said recently that "he did not belong to a certain club." What They Say.
It was the first day of her first term of school, and the new teacher called up the class and asked a large girl to tell of Columbus' voyage. "Well," said the girl, "Columbus started out and sailed around a dot." "What?" said the astonished teacher. "He sailed around a dot," repeated the girl. Pressed for her authority, she pointed triumphantly to the page in the book and the teacher read: "About this period Columbus sailed."

Clearfield borough was one of the first boroughs in Pennsylvania to take advantage of the Shade Tree Commission law. Our Shade Tree Commission has been working for ten or twelve years and has already accomplished a whole lot in the proper location and care of the shade trees which have made Clearfield not only pretty and attractive but famous the state over.

We baldheads must hang together and we therefore make haste to set our friend Cal Hoover of DuBois right before the readers of this valuable paper. Having once heard that even the hairs on a man's head were numbered and one glance at Cal's sparsely veined poll causing us to think here was a fine place to find it out for ourselves, we decided to take Cal's "number" while he was testifying in that DuBois case. It didn't take us long and the count showed just thirty-seven when fact we stated as the result of our personal census of Cal's head in that story. He now claims otherwise, hence, in the interest of fairness, the alacrity to set him right. Here is Cal's "alibi":—

Mysterious Confectionery.
The Chinese are very skilful in making confectionery, and possess the reputation of having the "secrets" the knowledge of which our own confectioners would find very desirable. They are able to make an orange of its pulp entirely, then fill it up with fruit jelly without one being able to find the smallest bit in the rind or even a tiny hole. Indeed, they even empty an egg in the same manner and fill it with a sort of almond nougat, without one being able to find the slightest break or incision in the shell.

Danger in "Stuffy Rooms."
The most important aspects of "bad air" are due to its high temperature, and the ill effects of even a slightly elevated room temperature, such as 75, are regarded sufficiently clear to warrant warnings against overheating.

Few Reach Standard of Beauty.
The standard of beauty, by general consent of the artist and poets of all ages and all climes, is to be found in the faces and forms of the Greek statues. How many women and men of today fulfill the canons of beauty? "One or two in a million," says Professor Pothe higher.

Getting on the Nerve.
They say Pat Pierce, the middle watchman of the city, a burglar standing over him, "your money?" "In my pants hanging over the chair," replied Mr. Pierce, "which pocket?" "In my pants hanging over the chair," replied Mr. Pierce, "which pocket?" "In my pants hanging over the chair," replied Mr. Pierce, "which pocket?"

Intelligence, Character, Courage Are Alone the Property of Individuals

by HERBERT HOOVER, in "American Individualism."

The social force in which I am interested  springs from the one source of human progress—that each individual shall be given the chance and stimulation for the best with which he has been endowed.

Intelligence, character, courage and the divine spark of the human soul are alone the property of individuals. Those do not lie in agreements, in organizations, in institutions, in masses or in groups. Production both of mind and hand rests upon impulses in each individual.

No civilization could be built or can endure solely upon the ground of unrestrained and intelligent self-interest.

The law has not arrived when any economic or social system will stand as last if founded upon altruism alone.

The will-o-the-wisp of autocracy in any form is that it supposes that a good lord endows a special few with all the divine attributes.

We in America have had too much experience of life to fool ourselves into pretending that all men are equal in ability, in character, in intelligence, in ambition.

Of the twelve men comprising the President, vice president, and cabinet, none have earned their way in life without economic inheritance and eight of them started with manual labor.

Progress is almost solely dependent upon the creative minds of those individuals with imaginative and administrative intelligence.  No one possesses more than a small percentage of those minds in a single generation.  They can rise solely through the selection that comes from the re-running mills of competition.  They must be given the attraction of premiums to effort.  It is the individual alone who functions in the world of intellect and in the field of leadership. Leadership cannot, no matter how brilliant, carry progress far ahead of the average of the mass of individual units.

Ideas that lead to progress are born out of the womb of the individual mind.  The crowd only feels; it has no mind of its own with which it can plan.

While we build our society upon the attainment of the individual, we shall safeguard to every individual equality of opportunity to take his position in the community to which his intelligence, character, and abilities entitle him; that we keep the social solution free from the domination of a few; that we shall stimulate the effort of each individual achievement; that through an enlarging sense of responsibility and understanding we shall assist him in this attainment; while he in turn stands up to the emery wheel of competition.

"She's an American. I Wonder What She's Doing So Far Away From Shore"

By REPRESENTATIVE T. H. MACLAFFERTY, of California.

I went to the Orient in 1916, and after leaving the port of Honolulu in four months' time I saw the American flag afloat only four.

The fourth time I saw it was on my way home, and I want you to picture this. We were crossing back to America in a British ship carrying 52 passengers, 50 of whom were American citizens and 2 of whom were Britishers. About 10 days out, one day, having seen nothing, we saw a little smudge of smoke in the distance. Naturally, everyone alive is a moment, and we watched that little smudge as it grew through the glasses. The captain of our ship was a typical Britisher, a broad, noisy, good-hearted British seaman, and finally that little tub, which she proved to be, a little American steam schooner coming from the Sound over to Japan, bobbing up and down on the face of the ocean. A cork broke out the American flag, and what did the British captain

I shall never forget it as long as I live, and it is one reason that I am in favor of this bill. He said, "Oh, by Jove, she's an American! I wonder what she's doing so far away from shore." There you have it!

Eleanor Boardman

The development of Eleanor Boardman as a "movie" star has attracted much attention. From about 2,000 girls she was chosen a very short time ago by a leading producer who was seeking material for film work. Doing her first small part to the satisfaction of the producer she was rapidly given more important parts until she now has reached stardom.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; signifying your lucky day and lucky hour.

EFFIE

FROM the quaint old-fashioned Euphemia, so rarely heard to these days, comes the phony name of Effie. It is not a diminutive, as is generally supposed but a full-fledged name with an interesting history. Originally Euphemia meant both fair speech and justice from the Greek, so that from an ironical standpoint it signified silence, and was applied to the stillness that prevailed during religious rites.

The first Euphemia who gave scope to the name was a young daughter of Githonia, whose father's company made her popular. She was called her father's daughter, and she was called her father's daughter. She was called her father's daughter, and she was called her father's daughter.

However, neither Effie nor Phemie, which I have been gravitating since those early times, can ever be forgotten because of the finest works of Sir Walter Scott. Heracles of fiction, written by the masters of literature, and their names are immortalized as heroes of history and Effie is no exception to this general rule.

It was once thought that the Scottish name Euphonia was one of the Greek names brought from Hungary by Queen Margaret. Others believed that it came from the Celtic Aolfe which has fostered so many of our present day feminine names. Indeed, those so inclined may take their choice of possible sources, though general credence is more often given to the first derivation, since it concerns a religious and in older days, it would seem that being martyred was all that was needed to perpetuate one's name through the centuries.

In the Scottish Highlands, Effie is called Oighigh, a name which seems to have no derivation whatever. The Church of Santa Eufemia at Rome gives title to a cardinal and through it the name has spread in popularity in Italy and France.

Effie's story is the topic, which has the power of the sun to put to flight all evil and dark forebodings, but it must be set in gold to accomplish its purpose. It promises that no harm shall befall its wearer. Tuesday is her lucky day; 2 her lucky number, and the chrysanthemum her flower.

The Delights of Life.

"What seems to grow faster" to me as life goes by is the love and peace and tenderness of it; not its wit and cleverness and grandeur of knowledge, grand as knowledge is, but just the laughter of little children, and the friendship of friends, and the comfort by the fireside, and the sight of flowers, and the sound of music.—J. R. Green.

Didn't Want to Wish.

"Internal but dry, and makes me internally thirsty" growled the colonel, sinking into the club's biggest arm chair one afternoon. "Tell them to fetch you some water, colonel," suggested a cold-hearted scoundrel who knew the old gentleman's habits, but the ancient warrior was equal to the occasion. "Sir," he said, fixing the suggestor with a fiery glare, "I don't thirst—not dirty."

Mean Man.

"I hear that Laura's engagement to the young minister is off." "Why, yes, she told me. He was horribly jealous and so unfair." "In what way was he unfair?" "Every time she would make an engagement to go motoring with some other man he would pray for rain."

Surprising.

At the celebration of the Burns centenary in Boston in 1940 Emerson surprised his audience, according to Lowell, who was present, by reciting in his program: "The Memory of Burns—I am afraid heaven and earth have taken too good care of it to leave us anything to say."

Fan Is Run by Alcohol.

A fan has been perfected that runs with alcohol. A little lamp operates it by heating air in a cylinder. The expansion and contraction of the air is ingeniously utilized to provide the motive power for the fan. Remarkable results have been obtained according to the company manufacturing it.

More Than One Universe.

With the naked eye one may see 5,000 stars, with the telescope 50,000, 000. And beyond planet and star and Milky Way are the nebulae, of which Herschel counted more than 2,000—stellar disks, composed of billions of suns—unexplored universes far outside our own, not friendly, next-door neighbors to us, like the North star, whose light requires only 50 years to reach us, or like Sirius or Hercules.

His Definition.

"Why are they called pyramids, pa?" asked George, who was looking at a picture of those wonders of Egypt. "They are called pyramids, my son," replied the father, without hesitation, "because, you see, they appear amid the general depression of the desert."

Foolish Rabbits.

A hare will dart in the path of a giant locomotive at night and run at the rate of sixty miles an hour in the full glare of the headlights and finally drop exhausted. It will never leap from between the rails to a place of safety. The hare pursues the same tactics on the highway when autos are speeding.

Buildings Burned in a Year Would Bridge Continent

AMERICA burned up nearly $500,000,000 in buildings and their contents in 1921, and probably exceeded that figure in 1922, according to statistics of our national fire loss.

Such a figure does not mean much to the human mind, but try to grasp it this way:

Imagine a line of buildings, such as those on any average city street. These are solid, substantial two-story structures, so close together that their eaves touch. But instead of extending the length of a city street, they stretch in an unbroken line all the way across the continent, from New York to Los Angeles.

Now imagine a fire starting in a building on the New York end of the street on January 1. It burns fiercely and is communicated to the next structure, and the next. So it burns its way without stopping night and day, until on December 31 it is burning the Los Angeles end of the street.

That line of burned buildings represents America's material loss by fire during the year.

More than that! In the blackened ruins of that street in every mile there is some person suffering from burn, and in every space of three miles and a half is a charred human corpse.

This huge loss does not take into account America's cost of fighting fire, which is also about $500,000,000. Nor does it take into account the loss of records, which are not insurable, and without which a business house or individual merchant is virtually powerless to show the amount of his loss for the collection of insurance.

It has been estimated that 80 per cent—four-fifths—of all this appalling loss is preventable.

Word From Headquarters.

"When, where and how will the war end?" "I don't know," replied the landlord of the Patunia tavern. "However, the young ladies and gents of the senior class of the village academy, several of whom are over sixteen years of age and have been outside of the county a time or two, are going to settle the entire question in a debate to-night. I understand, too, that while they are at it they will fix things so there will never be any more wars. So I shall be able to inform you in full tomorrow morning."

Wisdom in Liberty.

The United States is the only country where one can say offensive things about the executive and go unpunished, which may have much to do with the traditional sweetness of the American disposition, fermenting opinions of those in authority being promptly uncorked and as soon forgotten.

Independent Group Will Be Strong In New Congress

Preparations Being Made For Fight That May Dictate Issue In The Next Presidential Race

By LAWRENCE MARTIN

(United Press Staff Correspondent) Washington, March 7 (United Press).—With the 67th congress hardly out of town, preparations already are under way for the 68th which, under normal conditions, will not meet until the first Monday in next December.

These preparations will go forward all through the spring and summer, for they involve issues upon which the 1924 campaign may turn. And when the new congress meets, the 1924 campaign will be just around the corner.

The preparations were being made by three political groups who will figure in the 68th congress. They are the administration republicans, the independent or progressive republicans and the democrats.

The democrats, with greater strength in the new congress than in the late one, were concentrating their thought and effort on one thing—harmony. The vital necessity for getting all the democrats in congress working harmoniously together, if any real advantage is to be gained from the results of the 1922 congressional election became apparent to national leaders long ago.

In the senate particularly, the democrats hope for great things. The leadership of Senator Joe Robinson, Arkansas, who will replace Senator Underwood, Alabama, as minority leader. Underwood got the leadership after a fight of unprecedented bitterness and it was only then that Senator Underwood consented to give up his treasury portfolio and enter the senate that Underwood was assured of victory. His vote threw the scales. The statement of that fight was division and jealousy.

Underwood retired voluntarily at the end of the 67th congress and Robinson, early in the field won by superior generalship over Senator like it. There is talk of others.

The Independents

The first group is that little handful of independents out of the west that blew in on the 1922 election cyclone. They include Frazier, N. D.; Shipstead, Minn.; Wheeler, Mont. Dill, Washington; Howell, Neb.

They add their strength to that of Borah, Couzens, Brookhart, La Follette, Norris and sometimes, Norbeck and Ladd. They will be the real rulers of the new senate. There is another group just like them in the house but there, because of the rigidity of rules, and the ease with which the unyielding body can be led by the nose, they may have more trouble making their power felt. If they do, however, it will not be for lack of trying, because the Wisconsin delegation is already primed with plans for organizing the next house according to the most modern La Follettean ideas.

Members of Farm Bloc

The new independent group will be members of the farm bloc, but a definite movement to organize them into a third section, or wing of the senate, distinct from the republicans and democrats, is already under way. It may come to flower and fruition before next December. It is being carefully watched.

The leadership of this new group has already been pre-empted by Senator La Follette. Whether he will be able to keep it probably will be decided by the turn of events. La Follette is so superlatively different from the rest of the senate that even the gloomiest conservatives do not believe the newcomers will be radical enough to suit "Fighting Bob" and that he will disown them ere long.

"POTATOES" FOUND TO BE "POTEE"

Philadelphia, March 6.—Federal Prohibition Agents had under guard about five hundred thousand dollars worth of imported liquor, seized in the brewery of John Friedrich.

The seizures were made under the direction of F. A. Hazeltine, new Prohibition Chief for Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey. Agents swooped down on the Friedrich plant and found two railroad cars loaded with four thousand sacks labeled "potatoes." The sacks were ripped open and each contained twenty-four bottles of alleged Johnny Walker whiskey.

The agents, it was announced at Prohibition Headquarters found thousands of counterfeit script and a complete outfit for bottling whiskey.

BUSINESS MEN WANT FRENCH CAUTIONED IN INVASION OF RUHR

Washington, March 6.—American business men are exerting pressure on the United States government for action in the French occupation of the Ruhr district. Protests have been filed with the Commerce and State Departments against interference with transportation of German goods destined for the United States.

Shipments purchased by firms in the United States are reported to have been seized as they were being sent out of the Ruhr Valley. Protests in the form of letters, maintaining that commerce especially in the dye and drug trade is menaced by the action of the French. British drug and chemical firms have also been annoyed by the interference with commerce, according to word which has been received by official departments here. They have likewise filed complaints with their government.

POULTRY

NO CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Most Common Symptom of Disease is That Fowls Get Very Thin, Waste Away and Die.

Tuberculosis is one of the most common diseases found in the poultry flocks of the corn belt, says J. J. Warren of Iowa. The disease develops rather slowly. The infected birds do not usually show any symptoms until several weeks have passed, and in many instances several months after they have contracted it.

The most common symptom of tuberculosis is that the birds get very thin, "waste away" and finally die. Another is to find a bird going lame on one leg without showing any outward sign of injury, even while the bird is in good health. The bird may live several weeks after this lameness first shows up.

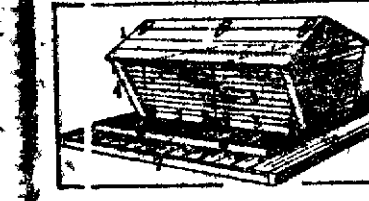

To make sure that the disease is tubercular, it pays to kill and examine the insides of a very sick bird. The liver, spleen and intestines are often enlarged, but contain light yellow spots which are hard, sandy lesions. Lungs are seldom found to contain lesions.

There is no cure for tuberculosis except to keep it from spreading. Burn the dead birds or bury them, kill the infected birds without spilling any blood, don't try to keep aged hens, and keep the henhouse clean, especially from droppings. Use lime on the soil where the flocks feed, and change the ground. It helps some to separate the young chicks from the old ones and to be careful when buying new stock. Sanitation is the biggest help.

HOPPER FOR FEEDING FOWLS

Model Shown in Illustration Appears to Afford Best Means of Rationing Hens.

After using many types of dry mash feeders in the poultry house the model shown in the cut appears to afford the best results. The fowls cannot stand on the top of the feeder, or get into it.

Dry Mash Feeder.

It is also difficult for them to waste feed by throwing it out, as the sloping guard in front prevents this. A sloping bottom should be put in, as suggested by the dotted line. Such a feeder can be made by cutting down an empty grocery box.

PROFITABLE TO CULL FLOCK

It is an Art Anyone Can Acquire, and the Sooner Unhealthy Fowls Go the Better.

Illing chickens is to the poultry keeper what milk testing is to the dairyman. Fortunately it is an art anyone can acquire. The sooner the sick is culled the sooner expenses are cut down. Then, too, the prices are higher earlier in the season. The man who is making the most of his poultry, systematically culls. Birds lacking in health, and general purpose breeds not laying and two years old, or over, should go. The older the bird, the less profitable she becomes.

MATURE GEESSE AS BREEDERS

Fowls Are Usually Best for Breeding When From Three to Five Years of Age.

Toulouse geese ordinarily will not breed until about two years of age, and they do not mature for another year. They are usually best for breeding when from three to five years old, although the females may be kept until they are from twelve to fourteen years of age, the ganders not generally being kept after they are eight or nine years old.

The busy hen is the laying hen.

There are poor laying hens in all breeds.

In poultry raising the breed is important, but the man or woman behind the breed is more so.

A sick hen may be faded but will not show the vigor that is shown in a good layer.

With colder weather more corn may be fed but it is easy to overfeed of corn, even in winter.

For the sake of keeping peace in the neighborhood, it is a good plan to locate the turkey flock now and then.

Clean floors are needed for clean nests. If the floors are dirty, mud is tracked into the nests, and gets on the eggs from the hen's feet.

Camden, N. J., March 6.—John Fister, aged thirty-two was virtually left waiting at the church while police searched for sixteen year old Freda Kibicki the bride to be.

A sister of the prospective bride appeared at the City Hall Saturday afternoon and secured a license and the ceremony was to have taken place at three o'clock this afternoon. Invitations were issued and plans for a big wedding had been made.

Freda left her home Sunday afternoon to visit some girl friends and did not return. Her father on his way to report her disappearance met the parents of Albert Franaszki, aged eighteen, who had called to report their son was missing. Police believe the missing couple eloped as Albert had drawn all his savings and the girl told friends she was going to Troy, Pa., to be married.

Women Bluebeards On Trial At Chicago

Chicago, March 6.—The death penalty was asked by prosecutors today at the afternoon trial of Mrs. Tillie Klimeck and Mrs. Nellie Koulik, alleged female "Blue Beards."

The women are alleged to have planned and carried out a wholesale poisoning scheme which claimed at least six lives and caused scores of persons to be dangerously ill.

The women were indicted on six counts of murder. They will be tried first for the murder of Frank Kasper, third husband of Mrs. Klimeck.

In practically every instance rat poison was used.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Tonic

Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and easily. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

RIPPLES HEARD ALONG THE SUSQUEHANNA

SHAWVILLE

Arthur Bushore of Sinnemahoning is visiting his sister, Mrs. Joseph Bushore.

Mrs. Merrill Kyler visited relatives and friends in Clearfield this week.

Ray V. Nelson visited relatives and friends in Clearfield this past week after being confined to his home the greater part of the winter with rheumatism.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Graham of Perry last week, a girl baby.

While the Rev. R. V. Wallace was doing his work at H. & W. mines Tuesday morning his horse suddenly became unmanageable, overturning the sleigh in which he was riding and dragging him a considerable distance through the snow and slush in a futile attempt to stop the frightened animal. Aside from a few minor injuries and a necessary change of clothing, Mr. Wallace was unhurt and was taken up on procuring his horse which had trapped itself in a fence nearby, to resume his journey.

Miss Lily Olson, the Egypt school teacher, visited her parents in Clearfield last week.

Farmers and others who make a practice of filling their ice houses for future consumption were somewhat disappointed this winter owing to the thin and inferior quality the streams produced despite severe periods of cold weather.

Tuesday evening as a New York Central empty coal train was pulling out of Clearfield a large rock rolled down a steep embankment and lodged in the tracks rigging under an empty car. The result was several hundred feet of track torn up and the car immobilized. Several hours intervened before the wreck was cleared up and traffic allowed to proceed.

E. Evans, the popular P. R. R. agent, is visiting friends in Atlantic City.

Miss McKeena, P. R. R. signal maintenance man, is visiting his parents at Erie this week.

W. L. Linder, of Birch Island, transacted business in Clearfield last week.

J. L. Schomo transacted business in

Clearfield during the week.

On account of the high water at Lock Haven Sunday and Monday traffic on the Pennsylvania railroad was suspended owing to their tracks being covered with water to a depth of several feet in that vicinity. As the N. Y. C. trains use the Pennsy tracks between Keating and McElhattan, this inundation forced the N. Y. C. to divert their first-class and perishable freight to the Beech Creek district until the situation at Lock Haven again returns to normal.

COUDLEY-FRENCHVILLE

William Mulson, a N. Y. C. employee of Coudley, was recently appointed section foreman on section five, at Rolling Stone.

The big wildcat which has been roaming over the Deer Creek hills for a number of years, is still escaping captivity.

The old log house on the estate of the late Fred Pontenoy, in Covington township, which braved the weather for more than four score years, is now being razed. The building was erected by the late John Ridger, of Frenchville, and was one of the first of its kind to be erected by the early settlers in this part of Clearfield county. The old structure contained eight large rooms, a wide hallway, and a large porch at the south entrance, and once stood as a "mansion" to the eyes of the early settlers, but time has found its usefulness. However, many hundred feet of valuable timber are being salvaged from it.

Nico's Bronchitis of Frenchville was visiting friends in Clearfield during the past week.

Owing to the hidering weather which we had last week, our mail had great difficulty in getting over their routes.

We are glad to report that the health of Mrs. Ada Jannot, of Frenchville, which has not been the very best for some time, has greatly improved.

March 6th, 1923, marks the third anniversary of the 26-foot ice jam in the Susquehanna river, at Dear, on which our valuable bridges were carried away.

George Green of Coudley left for Emporium last Friday, upon receiving CAL TWO RIPPLES—word that his brother Robert was seriously ill at that place.

Miss Emma Berger, of Coudley, was visiting relatives in Karthaus last Tuesday.

THE FAITH OF THE STATE CANNOT BE KEPT WITH PENN STATE COLLEGE WITH NINE CENTS PER CAPITA PROVISION

By DR. JOHN M. THOMAS, President of the Pennsylvania State College

NOTE:—This is the third of a series of articles by President Thomas dealing with the true relation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the Pennsylvania State College. In his previous articles, Dr. Thomas outlined the pledge made to Penn State by the Commonwealth in 1863 when it accepted the provisions of the Morrill Land Grant Act of Congress, and he brought out the way the Commonwealth had fulfilled its pledge.

III. Further Fulfillment of the Pledge

The covenant which the Commonwealth made with the United States involved a continuous and increasing responsibility. The pledge was to most education, which was doubtless expected to increase as time went on, and which as a matter of fact, in the marvellous industrial development of the past fifty years, has increased immeasurably. It was a living institution to which the faith of the State was pledged, an institution which should go on from generation to generation to promote the liberal and practical education of their State institutions. It is clear the industrial changes and which should of necessity increase its facilities and advance according to the demands and requirements of our advancing civilization.

Assuredly Pennsylvania did not pledge her faith to an institution which made no progress, but rather to one which should keep constantly abreast of the times in sound technical and scientific instruction. To fulfill her pledge, therefore, the Commonwealth should equip Penn State to meet the educational demands now urgently pressed upon her by the people of the State and place the College at least on the level with similar institutions of the more prosperous and progressive commonwealths.

The population of Pennsylvania is greater than that of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota combined, whose aggregate appropriation to strictly State institutions for maintenance in 1922 was $2,216,703. For the same year Penn State's appropriation for current maintenance was $200,000. President Burton of the University of Michigan has written: "Michigan's last Legislature provided for us almost $11,000,000 for the biennium. Your legislative appropriation therefore seems almost paltry."

The current appropriation for a living institution to which the faith of the State was pledged, an institution which should go on from generation to generation to promote the liberal and practical education of their State institutions. It is clear the industrial changes and which should of necessity increase its facilities and advance according to the demands and requirements of our advancing civilization.

Assuredly Pennsylvania did not pledge her faith to an institution which made no progress, but rather to one which should keep constantly abreast of the times in sound technical and scientific instruction. To fulfill her pledge, therefore, the Commonwealth should equip Penn State to meet the educational demands now urgently pressed upon her by the people of the State and place the College at least on the level with similar institutions of the more prosperous and progressive commonwealths.

Pennsylvania young men and women have been refused admission each year because of lack of accommodations. An average of 600 have been refused entrance each year since 1915, while due to the wide publicity given to the inability of the college to grant admission many others were no doubt discouraged from applying. Who were they—these thousands who have been stopped at Penn State's door? They were Pennsylvania youth desiring to fit themselves for positions in Pennsylvania agriculture and industry. They were the potential instruments for the increase of food production and the stimulation of industry and business in the Commonwealth. Certainly fulfillment of the pledge to Penn State requires that this loss be stopped.

To fulfill the pledge of the Commonwealth to Penn State under present conditions two things are necessary:

1. To provide adequate funds for the maintenance of the College with the present student body and educational program.
2. To furnish additional funds to meet the demand for increased enrollment and for the normal development of its teaching, research and extension projects.

Great is self doubt. Life goes all to ravel and tatters where that enters not—Carlyle.

Crowning Not as a secret. The Browning vogue and the sale of his books have fallen off perceptibly since it was discovered that the great poet was born and reared in social obscurity. Thus are the highbrows browbeaten by the vulgarians. Yet a Scotch clodhopper remains the literary and lyric aristocrat of northern Europe.—Minneapolis Journal

Truth in Short Sentence. "Ingratitude," said Uncle Eben, "is what a man complains of when he wants to draw big dividends on a small favor."

Daily Thought. That friendship only is, indeed, golden when two friends, without speaking a word to each other, can nevertheless find happiness in being together.—George Eliot.

Grip Left You a Bad Back?

ARE you getting over a cold or grip only to find yourself a victim of backache? Are you suffering headaches, too, dizzy spells, a dull, tired, worn-out feeling and annoying kidney irregularities? Then don't delay! Physicians agree that a vast number of the worst cases of kidney trouble are the result of germ diseases. In every infectious disease the system is alive with poisonous germs and bacteria. The kidneys are overwhelmed with the rush of new work; they break down, become congested, inflamed and diseased. Too often the real trouble is lost sight of until some dangerous kidney ailment sets in. If your kidneys are falling behind, don't wait for serious trouble. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills to-day. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Read How These Clearfield Folks Found Relief:

MRS. ROY SHIREY, 128 Clearfield St., says: "I had an attack of kidney complaint that caused me to have a severe pain in the small of my back. When I got up mornings, the pain was severe and I had headaches. My hands were swollen, too. After taking about four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, the pains in my back were all gone and I haven't been troubled with my kidneys since. I think Doan's are wonderful for kidneys."

O. P. CONKLIN, 414 Nichols St., says: "I suffered with my kidneys. I was drowsy and became dizzy. I also had headaches and severe pain in the small of my back, which caused a lot of annoyance. It was difficult for me to stoop on account of the trouble with my back. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me wonderfully, removing the pain in my back, dizziness and drowsiness. The headaches also went away."

MRS. L. P. WAGNER, 244 River St., says: "I have been troubled at times with severe pains in the small of my back. When I would lie down I could hardly get an agonizing and I couldn't bend over. I had headaches, too. I found that Doan's Kidney Pills relieved this condition and freed me of the backache and headaches. Others in my family have used Doan's and they have always found the same good relief."

DISCOVERIES MADE TO ORDER AT THE MELLON INSTITUTE OF INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH AT PITTSBURGH EVERY DAY

There are a good many of us who never stop to think where all the myriads of inventions come from that minister to our comfort, desires and progress. We know in a general way that Edison invented electric light, the Wright Brothers the airplane, Henry Ford the motor, and Ingersoll the dollar watch—that used to be.

But, since such modern miracles seem to keep right on happening, and most of us don't know where they come from, we are, as a rule, very apt to simply take them for granted, and not inquire very deeply into why, how and where.

Now comes an institution whose business, in a manner of speaking, it is to make inventions to order. We are all more than willing to admit that the discovering of new inventions and the perfecting of old ones is a mighty important, not to say serious, business, and certainly it is something of a relief to those of us who are not of an inventive turn of mind to learn that there is a place where this vital matter is reduced to a science.

In an article entitled "Discoveries Made to Order," a recent issue of Success Magazine tells about the work of Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, of Pittsburgh, Pa. This Institute, it appears, was built by Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury of the U. S. A., and his brother, Richard B., as a memorial to their father. It is a memorial built of stone and marble, as most memorials are, but there, it seems, its resemblance to the usual memorial ceases.

For of all the "five," active places on ever saw, one gathers that Mellon Institute is entitled, if not to the palm, at least to its modern substitute.

Harold Cary, the writer of the article in question, tells of his surprise at the variety and scope of the research work done. A liquid for stopping dental decay, research into the keeping of bread, gas masks, T. N. T., dental porcelain, magnesium, metal, galvanizing, glass, canned fruit, enamel, etc.

There appears to be no end to the methods and processes investigated, nor any end to the inventions, both major and minor, that are turned out as part of the day's work, not to mention the improvements of all sorts and degrees.

These inventions have been coming steadily with those imported from Persia and the Orient, but now they take the lead. The influence will be shown chiefly in the colors and designs of the popular printed fabrics, printed silks, silks, all crepes, cottons, wools, even wool jerseys. And the more the designs, the more popular the fabrics.

green on existing discoveries. Mr. Cary appeared to be particularly overwhelmed, and no doubt our readers will be also, by the fact that he was conducted through the Institute by Miss Alice Wakefield, who is "Junior Fellow" of a laboratory maintained for several years past by the Laundryowners National Association.

Who would think that the prosaic business of washing clothes would have to be "researched," along with metal metal and magnesium? To most of us it would appear that washing, though a sloppy and laborious process, consists principally of soap and water and a tub and washboard or washing machine.

Such, however, appears to be several lengthy slants away from the truth of the matter.

It seems that, to get by in the modern laundry, soap must be the pure stuff, unadorned by any substances that will "eat" the fabrics while they are "eating" the dirt in them; that water must be of "zero hardness," which means softer than rainwater; that shades of our grandmothers' lots of home washing is unsatisfactory because goods are not properly sterilized!

Therefore the modern laundry owner, along with his associates, is spending many thousands of dollars each year to maintain at Mellon Institute a staff of four people, who devote their whole time to the study of textiles and how to launder them for sweet and sanitary cleanliness, with long life to the linens and to the ladies who formerly rubbed away years of their lives over the washbasin.

This last item is by no means least among the attempts and accomplishments of the Mellon Institute, say we.
